02. From The President

Blue Roo Theatre Company (Blue Roo) finished the 2020/21 financial year managing the impacts of the global pandemic and refreshing itself to resume its activities in this new challenging and exciting environment.

COVID-19 necessitated a revision of how we approached theatre and all things associated with the stage as we understood it. We needed to accommodate masks, social distancing measures, lockdowns, restrictions on public gatherings and travel. I am pleased to say we were responsive to our restrictive environment while reviewing and providing safe opportunities for performers with disability, to develop and maintain performance skills and publicly perform in a different way.

Having learned new creative skills, we redesigned our business and creative models, and implemented innovative programs and projects in various genres through a staged planning process supporting safe, inclusive public performances.

We created a strong road map for broader engagement, more robust advocacy, and marketing opportunities to penetrate new markets and increase sector and community employment and career pathways for artists and arts workers locally and regionally.

Having a new lens focusing on digital productions we explored a new stage, that of the screen to connect with performers and audiences. We established a digital hub which also increased our income sources and developed new partnerships and collaborations. While we were doing so, we continued to work on our traditional annual production, our unique take on A Midsummer Night's Dream (AMSND) and supported an independent project, BOSS. True to the uncertain times that were 2020/21 these traditional stage productions were performed in August 2021, so more about them in our next report.

Our adaptive team and responsive performers brought together an insightful and revealing online production of My Life, My Story. In this, domestic and international audiences were part of conversations about the struggles and triumphs of performers with disability and the benefit of theatre in their lives, and the lives of their families.

I am excited that our governance review and our increased profile, through social media marketing has meant increased career pathway opportunities within Blue Roo and for performers in our productions.

This has been another challenging year, and like so many others, we hope 2021/22 will give us a better glimpse of the new normal. I would like to extend my personal thanks to the hard-working volunteers in our small but vibrant company, the people who make up our Management Committee. Without their efforts and commitment and the general membership of Blue Roo, it could not continue to do the work that it does.

Sadly in October 2020 our Treasurer, Tanya Fomin, resigned from the company. I would like to thank Tanya for her many years of service to Blue Roo.

Thanks also to Arts Queensland for the trust and support provided throughout the financial year, to Centacare for its ongoing collaboration and partnership in supporting inclusive performance opportunities and to QPAC for supporting our major production. Thank you to Musical Director, Luke Scott, creator of our unique music and for Movement Director, Brian Lucas for his skill and energy and Holly Leeson for your administrative and choreographic support.

Jenny Delgado, our bookkeeper does a wonderful job supporting us behind the scenes.

03. Strategic Direction

In 2020/21 Blue Roo ventured into untested waters as it learnt from the experiences of 2019/2020. In April 2020 we conducted a Business Impact Analysis which was the basis of change for this financial year as we adapted and broadened our horizons. We looked at how to recover from the past year and grow through melding traditional theatre successes, digital innovation and broadening income sources.

Blue Roo faced several challenges in 2020/21 as it managed its funding arrangements following the resignation of the then Artistic Director. Financial arrangements were scrutinised as a result of changing income streams due to COVID restrictions. While evaluating existing partnerships we became more dynamic as opportunities were ceased through new partnerships and collaborations.

Flexibility, agility and accessibility were required for 2020/21 if, Blue Roo was to come out of this pandemic with strength. We have indeed learnt new creative skills, redesigned our business and creative models, implemented innovative programs and projects in various genres using staged planning processes which supported safe, inclusive public performances.

During 2020/21 Blue Roo pursued its purpose to produce work that engaged and enriched the lives of our audiences and performers, challenged stereotypes and celebrated and encouraged diversity and inclusion.

The Company developed productions specifically designed to move among the digital world, the stage and community spaces, which adapted to shifts required by COVID restrictions.

Financial viability was an ongoing challenge as we diversified funding sources.

Skills development, mentoring, development of new partnerships and increased employment opportunities for Queensland artists and arts workers were on the agenda for 2020/21. We established a new business model and implemented a broader range of income sources. As Facebook was our primary mode of social media marketing we focused on engagement through this medium, with a deal of success. New products were created in preference to marketing and republishing our older productions.

Depending on the available resources, our vision is to create a Performance Digital Hub to include the celebration of local and regional inclusive performing arts organisations. The Hub would provide a wider audience reach, showcase the work of inclusive theatre in Queensland and facilitate collaborative sector advocacy for the employment of inclusive performers, artists and arts workers.

04. Corporate Governance

Governance

2020/21 has seen a change in Management Committee membership. Our treasurer resigned and a new member joined us. The latter, Tianna Paget has much needed skills which will enhance our development of productions to meet the needs of our changing environment. Her skill set was also welcomed for the Artistic Subcommittee. Ms Paget is a young, experienced performing artist who teaches stage performance skills professionally and has studied theatre and film making.

In 2020/21 we had several additions to the theatrical team, which boosted Blue Roo's creative energy. We gained an Artistic Program Coordinator progressing our Administration Officer into the role, recognising her theatre experience and recent successful studies in the field. This filled a gap left when our Artistic Director resigned. The growth continued as experienced thespian and lecturer in the field, Simone de Haas joined the team along with an emerging filmmaker, experienced Producer, Director, Writer, Vision and Sound Editor and Camera Operator, Lexy Suttor. Blue Roo has added depth to its team and this was seen in its ability to reinvent itself in 2020/21.

In April we conducted our 2021/22 Planning Day, reflected on the learning from 2020/21 and re-modeled our production priorities.

As Blue Roo worked in collaboration with Centacare it needed to revise its major performance's project management system and additional processes were developed to ensure the terms and conditions of funding arrangements were satisfied. This was all part of the learning curve. We did it. Looking forward, projections to manage uncertainty were continually revised and the shift to include more creative options of theatre were built into our repertoire.

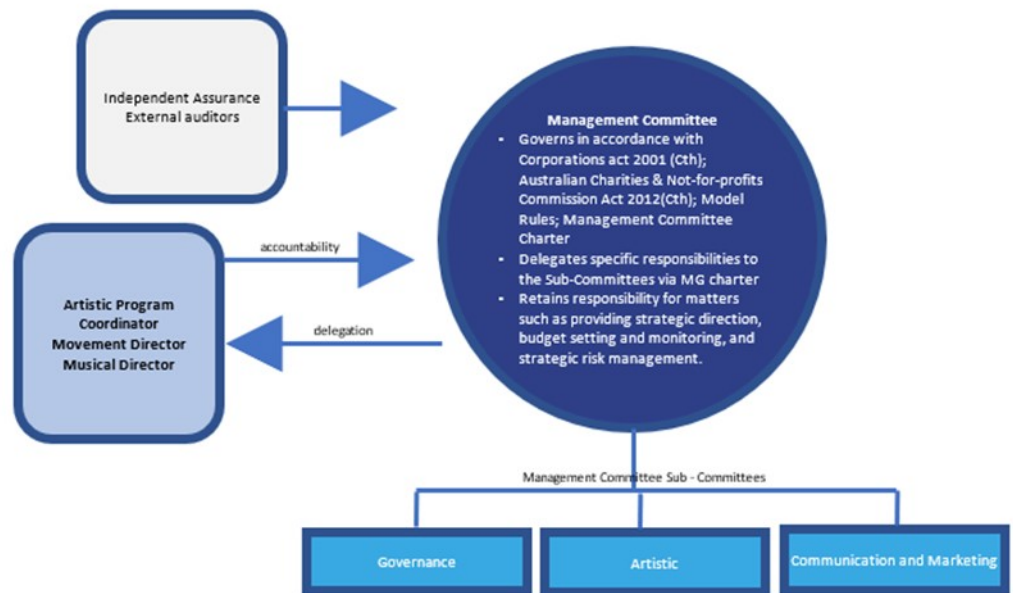

In 2020/21 Blue Roo looked toward its revenue opportunities and established a fee-for-service model for short term and longer-term programs to increase earned income.

By the close of this financial year Blue Roo was able to reflect positively on its journey through the period. Its production options have broadened as has its skills base. We eagerly await the coming year with a variety of productions in development.

06. Our Achievements

2020/21 was a year of disruption to our planned live public performances and community engagement activities. Participation in skills programs and rehearsals fluctuated during this year due to changing COVID circumstances and health concerns for inclusive artists. Despite these disruptions Blue Roo hit key achievements, as a result of its review of how it did theatre.

Entered the digital world

We released our first, high quality, digital production My Life, My Story on our newly established YouTube channel. The production, publicly available on YouTube for viewing and comment was very well received with views within Australia and internationally.

A significant number of local and regional viewers experienced an inclusive production for the first time. This highlighted Blue Roo's broader reach, brand awareness and inclusive advocacy opportunity. The production also stimulated the inclusive artists and provided them with encouragement to explore the medium. It also improved their global exposure to facilitate employment opportunities.

Given the artists' frustrations associated with a restrictive COVID environment, it was an important boost for them as it provided a realistic feeling of ongoing optimism and hope for them, in spite of the COVID experience.

My Life, My Story established our new hybrid model that could transition to public spaces and traditional stage productions, while it enabled live rehearsals, stage productions and public performances to transition to a digital space. The production also gave birth to a new original stage production, Tis the Season, a narrative, small group storytelling, music and dance production planned for November 2022.

2020/21 was seen as a year which facilitated the Blue Roo team's skills to lead and engage development and delivery of future digital productions.

Refreshed our approach

The implementation of our new production development model and engagement programs resulted in an increase in our ability to reach new audiences.

Our new Digital Hub and digital equipment promise to substantially expand the frequency of our local, regional and global reach through the development and distribution of additional performance and advocacy productions.

2020/21 saw the creation of a new YouTube channel to market, release and archive our digital productions and live performances. The Digital Hub encompassed the existing Facebook page and the establishment of a YouTube channel to inform and market Blue Roo's brand and activities. This improvement enabled cross-promotion networking which generated page views, which increased our domestic and international public engagement.

This initiative provided promise for future local and regional performances and podcast collaborations through the Digital Hub. It also created an additional digital earned income stream, which positioned Blue Roo to increase employment opportunities for Queensland artists and arts workers.

06. Our Achievements

Our new approach provided Blue Roo with the ability to live stream, record and edit all public spaces, regional touring events, associated community workshops and the capacity for expansion into avenues such as video podcasts and eBooks.

Established new partnerships and collaborations

2020/21 saw the introduction of new artistic and stakeholder partnerships and existing collaborations were strengthened.

In the production process for My Life, My Story Simone De Haas, the creative director and Gold Matilda award winner joined forces with Lexy Suttor, filmmaker and film director to guide and mentor the Blue Roo team, inclusive artists and their families. Ms De Haas and Ms Suttor subsequently joined Blue Roo's theatrical profile as associates.

Our foray into digital production contributed to disability research as the University of Queensland's education research team referenced My Life, My Story in its paper for The International Association for the Scientific Study of Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (IASSIDD) conference. Blue Roo plans to maintain its relationship with the University.

The opportunity for partnership with the Variety Kids Choir arose in 2020/21. Blue Roo saw this as a chance to include younger people with disability in its productions. The Choir could perform publicly in a range of genres and supported the A Midsummers Night's Dream production.

In 2020/21, Australia's National Institute for Dramatic Art (NIDA) approached Blue Roo. Discussions were initiated regarding its future support of the inclusive performing arts sector. This was an encouraging and exciting validation of the work being done by Blue Roo.

Among existing collaborations the Queensland Performing Arts Centre (QPAC) expanded its major production support and engaged its Facebook networks to assist My Life, My Story digital viewings. While Access Arts and Cre8ive also used their social media networks across Queensland to assist Blue Roo activities.

Reciprocal collaborations with Access Arts, La Boite Theatre and Queensland University of Technology were strengthened in 2020/21.

Implemented new business model

Increased creative agility to minimise critical business threats was initiated by the staged implementation of Blue Roo's new business model in 2020/21.

The new business model implemented a broader range of income sources through digital productions, connected with the PayPal Giving Fund and created a Blue Roo donation QR code.

Organisational capacity was stabilised by implementation of a revised retainer employment model, to increase employee and contracted artist and arts worker income stability, and to support additional career pathway opportunities.

In 2020/21 Blue Roo's organisational reach and visibility through social media marketing resulted in cold calling approaches from interstate media and production organisations as they looked to employ performers with disability for projects.

07. Financial Summary

2020/21 has been a very quiet year.

Nevertheless, in 2020/21 the Blue Roo Theatre Company Inc. achieved another surplus although it was somewhat reduced. This reduction was in essence due to the rescheduling of the showcase event from 2020 to 2021 because of COVID-19.

Although the pandemic impacted on our showcase production, the Blue Roo Theatre Company Inc. saw a small increase in Net Assets and an equally small decrease in Net Liabilities. Assets are now valued at $133,874 and Liabilities at $46,270 giving Blue Roo net assets of $87,603.

Because of the rescheduling of the showcase event we have unexpended income of $42,706 from our government grant income.

The net result for the 2020/21 year has been a further increase in the Company's Equity of $6651.

Considering the context of the global pandemic that is a pretty good result.

08. Our Generous Supporters

Blue Roo Theatre Company Inc. wishes to thank our financial and nonfinancial supporters who contributed to sustaining the Company and without whom we could not exist.

Arts Queensland has enabled Blue Roo to deliver productions and has been supportive through the process of redefining Blue Roo as a production company.

The partnership with Centacare is ongoing and operating well. We continue our endeavour to ensure greater role clarity between the organisations.

While our partnership with the Variety Kids Choir is in its infancy we are looking forward to the blossoming of this genre in Blue Roo productions.

The relationship established with QPAC is proving highly beneficial to both organisations. Blue Roo is grateful for the support and encouragement QPAC has provided over 2020/21.

Blue Roo would also like to thank Access Arts and Cre8ive for the social media assistance provided as we got our digital production established.

Appendix—Notes

Notes to the Financial Statements

Blue Roo Theatre Company Inc For the year ended 30 June 2021

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

The financial statements are special purpose financial statements prepared in order to satisfy the financial reporting requirements of the Associations Incorporations Act 1981. The committee has determined that the association is not a reporting entity.

The financial statements have been prepared on an accruals basis and are based on historic costs and do not take into account changing money values or, where stated specifically, current valuations of non-current assets.

The following significant accounting policies, which are consistent with the previous period unless stated otherwise, have been adopted in the preparation of these financial statements.

Income Tax

The association is exempt from income tax in terms of Section 50-40 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 as amended.

Property, Plant and Equipment (PPE)

Leasehold improvements and office equipment are carried at cost less, where applicable, any accumulated depreciation.

The depreciable amount of all PPE is depreciated over the useful lives of the assets to the association commencing from the time the asset is held ready for use.

Leasehold improvements are amortised over the shorter of either the unexpired period of the lease or the estimated useful lives of the improvements.

Impairment of Assets

At the end of each reporting period, the committee reviews the carrying amounts of its tangible and intangible assets to determine whether there is any indication that those assets have been impaired. If such an indication exists, an impairment test is carried out on the asset by comparing the recoverable amount of the asset, being the higher of the asset's fair value less costs to sell and value in use, to the asset's carrying amount. Any excess of the asset's carrying amount over its recoverable amount is recognised in the income and expenditure statement.

Employee Provisions

Provision is made for the association's liability for employee benefits arising from services rendered by employees to the end of the reporting period. Employee provisions have been measured at the amounts expected to be paid when the liability is settled.

Provisions

Provisions are recognized when the association has a legal or constructive obligation, as a result, of past events, for which it is probable that an outflow of economic benefits will result and that outflow can be reliably measured. Provisions are measured at the best estimate of the amounts required to settle the obligation at the end of the reporting period.

These notes should be read in conjunction with the attached compilation report.

Appendix—Notes

Notes to the Financial Statements

Cash on Hand

Cash on hand includes cash on hand, deposits held at call with banks, and other short-term highly liquid investments with original maturities of three months or less.

Accounts Receivable and Other Debtors

Accounts receivable and other debtors include amounts due from members as well as amounts receivable from donors. Receivables expected to be collected within 12 months of the end of the reporting period are classified as current assets. All other receivables are classified as non-current assets.

Revenue and Other Income

Revenue is measured at the fair value of the consideration received or receivable after taking into account any trade discounts and volume rebates allowed. For this purpose, deferred consideration is not discounted to present values when recognising revenue.

Interest revenue is recognised using the effective interest method, which for floating rate financial assets is the rate inherent in the instrument. Dividend revenue is recognised when the right to receive a dividend has been established.

Grant and donation income is recognised when the entity obtains control over the funds, which is generally at the time of receipt.

If conditions are attached to the grant that must be satisfied before the association is eligible to receive the contribution, recognition of the grant as revenue will be deferred until those conditions are satisfied.

All revenue is stated net of the amount of goods and services tax.

Leases

Leases of PPE, where substantially all the risks and benefits incidental to the ownership of the asset (but not the legal ownership) are transferred to the association, are classified as finance leases.

Finance leases are capitalised by recording an asset and a liability at the lower of the amounts equal to the fair value of the leased property or the present value of the minimum lease payments, including any guaranteed residual values. Lease payments are allocated between the reduction of the lease liability and the lease interest expense for that period.

Leased assets are depreciated on a straight-line basis over the shorter of their estimated useful lives or the lease term. Lease payments for operating leases, where substantially all the risks and benefits remain with the lessor, are charged as expenses in the periods in which they are incurred.

Goods and Services Tax (GST)

Revenues, expenses and assets are recognised net of the amount of GST, except where the amount of GST incurred is not recoverable from the Australian Taxation Office (ATO). Receivables and payables are stated inclusive of the amount of GST receivable or payable. The net amount of GST recoverable from, or payable to, the ATO is included with other receivables or payables in the assets and liabilities statement.

These notes should be read in conjunction with the attached compilation report.

Notes to the Financial Statements

Financial Assets

Investments in financial assets are initially recognised at cost, which includes transaction costs, and are subsequently measured at fair value, which is equivalent to their market bid price at the end of the reporting period. Movements in fair value are recognised through an equity reserve.

Accounts Payable and Other Payables

Accounts payable and other payables represent the liability outstanding at the end of the reporting period for goods and services received by the association during the reporting period that remain unpaid. The balance is recognised as a current liability with the amounts normally paid within 30 days of recognition of the liability.
